

ABSTRACT

An electrode array for use with a cochlear implant is disclosed, which has electrodes selectively spaced to better target selected regions of the cochlea. In one form, the spacing between adjacent electrodes decreases
5 towards an apical end of the array, allowing the electrodes to better target receptors on the inner wall of the scala timpani of the cochlea.

008280-65267960